

Mondays ...

It was a _____ Monday.
adjective

Everyone was _____ in the newsroom.
adjective

There was a problem... No one had a _____ for an article.
noun

"What shall we _____?" asked John.
verb

"I don't know...I'm _____," said Anne.
adjective

"Wait a minute! I've got a _____," said Fabio. "Let's go out on
noun

the town and _____ a story worth _____ about."
verb present participle verb

So the whole team left the newsroom to go into town to find a _____.
noun

After just a few _____, they had met _____ people
plural noun adjective

and gathered many _____ stories.
adjective

Now they had enough material to write _____ for weeks!
plural noun

Instructions:

1. Without showing the story, ask a friend, colleague or loved one for words that fit the parts of speech categories. For example, say, "Give me an adjective."
2. Fill in the blanks with their suggestions.
3. Read the completed story back to your partner and have a laugh.

A Newsworthy Wedding

"Breaking news: The _____ is getting married!"

noun

The editorial team knew this _____ wedding would be

adjective

the top _____ of the year.

noun

Every newspaper in the world would _____ to write about it.

verb

They had to move _____.

adverb

They went through their _____ to find photos

plural noun

and _____ about the couple.

plural noun

Then one journalist found it... Something so _____ that it could

adjective

shape history.

"May the _____ set us free!" he said as he _____ down

noun

verb: simple past tense

the hall.

"Fortune favors the _____!" yelled his colleague after him.

adjective

Instructions:

1. Without showing the story, ask a friend, colleague or loved one for words that fit the parts of speech categories. For example, say, "Give me an adjective."
2. Fill in the blanks with their suggestions.
3. Read the completed story back to your partner and have a laugh.

The Big Story

Jason was so _____ .
adjective

He had just uncovered a _____ that would make him _____ .
noun adjective

He knew he had to take the story to his _____ , Barbara.
noun

It would be on the front _____ , for sure!
noun

He _____ on the door to Barbara's _____ . "Hey, Barbara!
verb: simple past tense noun

I've got a _____ story that we have to _____ ."
adjective verb

Barbara took a look at his _____ .
noun

"This is a big _____ , indeed! Whatever _____ you need to noun plural noun

publish it, I'll make sure you _____ them."
verb

"Thanks, Barbara. I appreciate your _____ ," said Jason.
noun

Barbara smiled, "Don't thank me too _____ , Jason. I haven't told you adverb

the deadline yet."

Instructions:

1. Without showing the story, ask a friend, colleague or loved one for words that fit the parts of speech categories. For example, say, "Give me an adjective."
2. Fill in the blanks with their suggestions.
3. Read the completed story back to your partner and have a laugh.